

AD CLERUM – June 2008

My Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ

It is with great heaviness of heart that I write this reflection. The violence of the past weeks is reminiscent of that of our townships in flames during the 1980's and, even though the violence appears to be coming under control, the hurt and damage to people's lives is incalculable. And Jesus weeps.

Everyone has their own belief and theory as to why this violence has erupted. To name but a few; xenophobia and tribalism, the failure of service delivery of our government, the lack of any coherent refugee policy, corrupt police and officials, rising levels of poverty and crime, and the perceptions that foreign nationals are involved in crime and are stealing jobs because they are willing to work for lower salaries. Many of these factors are undoubtedly cause for discontent and are probably fueling the violence. Nevertheless, we have lived with almost all of these things for a considerable period of time without resorting to violence, and so the question as to why the violence has erupted remains to be satisfactorily answered.

Deeply disturbing is the fact that, at all the meetings I have attended, there seems to be a general acknowledgement that for the most part the violence is neither haphazard nor random, but rather carefully orchestrated, with specific homes targeted while those around are ignored. While the government has blamed the violence on 'criminal elements,' others are speaking of a 'third force' at work. Who such a force might be, if it exists, or why it is at work is, as yet unclear, but the levels of the intentional targeting of victims does suggest that the discontent is being deliberately manipulated and that many of those involved in the violence or sympathetic to it are pawns in the schemes of others. I therefore urge everyone to be especially cautious about what we hear, especially when what we are told feeds the sense of discontent, anger and violence.

In times of discontent, the danger is always that we look for someone to blame and, with emotions running high, we almost always end up with simplistic answers that are not true and people become scapegoats, unfairly accused and bearing the brunt of the anger of others. It is very clear from recent surveys and that immigrants and refugees have become the scapegoat of the moment and the focus for deep angers that have little directly to do with them. The open anger and hostility shown towards Jacob Zuma when he appealed for peace at a meeting on the East Rand is an indication that the real sources of the anger being vented on refugees and immigrants lie elsewhere.

That there is much that is happening in this beautiful land of ours that is cause for great concern. Our education and health systems are in crisis, as is the provision of electricity and housing; crime and corruption is rife; the quality of service delivery in almost all sectors of government is appalling and our national, provincial and city leaders and employees are seldom held accountable for either incompetence, non-delivery or corruption. All this is just cause for anger and discontent, but little if any of it can be blamed on either immigrants or refugees. If all immigrants and refugees were suddenly to leave, the situation of crisis in our country would not change much, if at all. The problem lies within ourselves and our new South Africa and unless we face our own failures we are sowing the seeds of our own self destruction and many of our Chapter 9 organisations (Chapter 9 of the Constitution – eg Human Rights, Gender Commission, etc) are saying that it is only a matter of time before the present xenophobia degenerates into open tribal and racial conflict.

Such a move would be disastrous for our land and is not the way it should be for a country where the vast majority of people profess to be Christians. The way of Christ is the way of non-violence and peace. Others, whatever their race, tribe, or faith are our brothers and sisters created in the image of God and precious in God's sight. "An injury to one is an injury to all and an injury to Christ himself, for Christ indwells all his children - "I tell you the truth, whatever you did to the least of these brothers of mine, you did it to me." As Christians we cannot condone violence, nor participate in it, nor support it from a distance. Violent means can never bring about a just end. Evil begets evil and only serves to increase the hurt and brokenness of our world. I appeal to you in the name of Christ not to ally yourselves either in thought or action with those who embrace evil means. As Christians we must stand up against evil and oppose what is being done. There is much that we can do, and much that we need to be doing to combat the xenophobic violence that has swept our land and taken root in our hearts:-

- Pray.
- Examine yourself and seek God's help so that that we may all begin to see others as brothers and sisters created in the same image of Christ;
- Begin conversations with family members, friends and neighbours about what is happening in our land and to speak out against xenophobia, tribal prejudices, and the scapegoating of individuals or groups;
- Speak to your parish block leader or local councilor and encourage them to call meetings to condemn the violence;
- Join your local community policing forum as a way of showing clear and active support for those who are being threatened and where friends and neighbours are possible targets, offer them a place of refuge;
- Do not move into the evacuated houses of those who are fleeing the violence and report those who do to the police;
- Support the relief appeals being made through your parish and diocese.

Many of you have already responded with enormous generosity to our appeals for help and some parishes have already sent many tons of supplies for distribution to those who are in places of safety and refuge. I thank you all. But we need to go further than simply denouncing evil and engaging in simple humanitarian acts of kindness. As I said earlier, the problem lies within ourselves and there is a need for change of heart and a new sense of purpose if we are to bring about the transformation we so desperately long for and even more desperately need. It begins with the prayer, "Change my heart, O God," for demands of us a willingness to be God's instruments of change. I want to suggest four areas where change is necessary in each of us:-

- We need to commit to real transformation in our land, not the kind of BEE enrichment where a very few acquire huge wealth while the overall levels of poverty continue to increase. We need to learn to live more simply in order that others may simply live. This will require of us a significant shift not just in attitude, but also in behaviour. We need to deliberately and intentionally move away from our quest for ever more affluent lifestyles and conspicuous consumption. Unless we make this change, the rich will continue to get richer, the poor will get poorer, and the incidence of violence in our country will continue to rise.
- We need, too, a shift of attitude and behaviour in business; a move away from simply trying to maximize profits, towards greater job creation and the provision of more affordable goods, especially where those goods are basic and staple foods. We need to be calling on Government to remove VAT from essential foodstuffs, to provide tax incentives for companies to generate additional jobs, and to introduce a Basic Income Grant.
- Mamphela Ramphele says: "Leadership in the transformation process must itself be transformative; it must embody the vision, values and principles of the society we aspire to become." Not only must we require that our national leaders embody such transformative leadership, but we ourselves, as people of leadership and influence in our society must also embody in our lives the vision, values and principles of the Kingdom of God that we, as Christians, pray will come "... here on earth, even as it is in heaven."
- In the old apartheid days some people, recognizing that their success in life was at least in part at the expense of others because of the injustices and inequalities of apartheid, introduced the concept of a "Self-Tax." The idea behind the concept was that each person who was benefiting from the inequalities of the system would voluntarily set aside a portion of their income (the amount was left to the individual's discretion) which would be used to benefit those who were disadvantaged. So, for example, some supported a variety of self-help projects, others made money available for education. Many of us who live in cities have benefited enormously from the changes in our society, both in terms of income and in the greater access to resources. Perhaps we need to look at again imposing on ourselves a "Self-Tax" that could be used to help those who are still disadvantaged and excluded from the resources that we so often simply take for granted. I commend the idea to you.

One final comment. For years our diocesan leadership has talked about the need to establish a programme for healing and reconciliation within the diocese, but have never been able to find the capital necessary for such a programme. I believe that, in the light of what is happening in our country, such a programme is no longer a luxury, but a necessity and we will be exploring how to make our new Diocesan Centre at St Joseph's just such a place of healing and reconciliation.

In 1994 Nelson Mandela said, "Never, never, and never again shall it be that this beautiful land will again experience the oppression of one by another" But "never again" is happening again and we are the oppressor.

May God's healing and reconciling love been visible in us, God's people

+ Brian

Of Leave and Lambeth

I had planned to take half of my now overdue long leave before going on to Lambeth, but circumstances have dictated otherwise. I will now only be leaving on 15 June to spend a couple of weeks with my brother in Canada before going on to Lambeth. I will be involved in some planning meetings prior to Lambeth as well as some preaching engagements both before and post Lambeth. I will be back on 8 August. Please pray for me as I visit my brother (who as you all know is seriously ill) and pray for God's guidance and blessing upon the Lambeth Conference. You will continue to be in my prayers.

Spiritual Formation

Clergy Quiet Day: Our next Diocesan Quiet Day which will be at Bishop's House on Tuesday, 19th August 2008. Prayer is central to effectiveness in ministry so please plan to make this day a part of your spiritual life.

Clergy Day: The next Clergy Day will be on Tuesday, 3rd June 2008 at St Patrick's, Malvern. The Ven Dr Tim Long will be speaking on the topic of Sexuality.

Directions to St Patrick's:

From Jhb

Reading Recommendations

My reading recommendation for the month is a departure from the usual theological or spiritual work, but one that I believe should be compulsory reading for all South Africans. Mamphela Ramphele's latest book, "Laying Ghosts to Rest", deals with our past, the "stubborn ghosts" of the present (including xenophobia and tribalism), and looks to the challenges of leadership and citizenship in a new South Africa. It is enormously challenging and very apposite for our times as it speaks of ways in which anger can be channelled into creative energy. Please read it.

I would also like to recommend one other book, "Anglicans Against Apartheid 1936-96" by Bob Clarke, an Anglican priest and Church History lecturer. Bob was deeply involved in ministry to people detained without trial, as well as in conflict resolution and in monitoring South Africa's first democratic election in 1994. The book is available through the ACSA Publications Director, Cynthia Botha and paid orders received before the end of June will be discounted at R 125 - half price.

Self Supporting Clergy Training

My thanks to those of you who responded to my summons to the meetings on 3rd May and 24th May. I think that they were helpful both for us and for those who attended. As I have previously indicated I will be taking action against those who did not bother either to attend or tender apologies. The next meeting of self-supporting clergy will take place from 08h30–12h30 at St Thomas', Linden on 5th July.

The Diocesan Young People's Portfolio

The DYPP invites all young people in your parish to the Diocesan Youth Festival to be held at St Barnabas College, Bosmont on Monday, 16th June 2008. Festivities start at 09h30 and end at 16h00. The Festival will be a great opportunity for all young people in our Diocese to share fun and fellowship. A variety of activities will be presented, such as poetry, drama, cultural dance, playing of musical instruments etc. If any individual or group from your parish or Archdeaconry would like to participate by rendering an item/performance at the event please contact the diocesan office as indicated below. All parishes are invited to attend even if they will not be rendering any item at the event. There will be no charge for this event!! Refreshments will be served and the school tuck shop will be open on the day. For further details please contact Linda L. Mokgathe, Young People's Coordinator, Diocesan Young People's Portfolio on 011 336 8724 or email linda@cpsajoburg.org.za.
